

DEPARTMENT OF INTEGRATIVE BIOLOGY SEMINAR

ECOPHYSIOLOGY AND POTENTIAL FOR PERSISTENCE IN A CHANGING OCEAN

DR. JACQUELINE PADILLA-GAMIÑO

The Padilla-Gamiño lab studies the ecophysiology and reproductive biology of marine organisms in a changing environment. By combining field and laboratory techniques we examine the importance of transgenerational effects in acclimatization and local adaptation and investigate the synergistic effects of multiple stressors on coastal ecosystems.

<http://padilla-gaminolab.weebly.com/>

MONDAY, NOVEMBER 6
3:30 P.M.
ALS 4001
FREE & OPEN TO THE PUBLIC

Accommodations for disabilities may be made by contacting 541-737-2993 or ib@oregonstate.edu.